

java-javastandalone

null - 1.6

version :1.0

A standalone application is one that can be executed independently and would execute and produce some output either as a UI or on the JVM console. Any java class with a main method can be considered a mini standalone java application.